

trial was fabricated, however, it is still remarkable that Hamilton chose to describe the experiment in the terms that he did, particularly if he judged that his description of alternation and standard conditions would impress his examiners and other readers.

References:

Hamilton AL (1816). Dissertatio Medica Inauguralis De Synocho Castrensi. Edinburgh: J Ballantyne.

Hamilton AL (unpublished (a)). Dissertatio Medica Inauguralis De Synocho Castrensi manuscript translation. Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh. Alexander Hamilton Collection [11/70]

Hamilton A (unpublished (b)). Manuscript journals. Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh. Alexander Hamilton Collection [11/72]

Pitman J (1987). Alexander (Lessasier) Hamilton: an eventful life. Proceedings of the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh 17:286-290.

Rosner L (1999). The most beautiful man in existence: the scandalous life of Alexander Lesassier. Philadelphia: University of Pennsylvania Press.

Anderson A (1976). My dear Cath ...the story of an army doctor's wife. Peebles.

Milne I, Chalmers I (2001). Tackling bias in assessing the effects of health care interventions: early contributions from James Lind, Alexander Lesassier Hamilton and T. Graham Balfour. Proc Roy Soc Coll Phys Edin 31 Suppl 9:46-48.

Title Page

Key Passages

Translations

Commentary

Biography

Other Material

Context

Back

Home

Search